How to make a submission

Simply provide a clear summary of the following in our nomination form:

1. The 5 most important litigation cases in your career and in the last 12 months (1 Dec 2019 to 1 Dec 2020)
2. Provide cases you participated in and for which judgements were pronounced in the past 12 months, the information of which is available through public channels.
3. Provide a list of any significant accolades you have received from work.

Providing client recommendations

We also require a list of referees, whom we may interview. A referee is usually a client, although it can be anyone who has experience and knowledge of your firm in that practice area over the preceding 12 months. Providing referees allows us to gather feedback on your practice. We use these interviews to understand the views and experiences of your clients and this helps to inform our decisions.

Research

We conduct our ranking research based on several factors and considerations, all of which are assessed by our research team. Our dedicated research team will review all submissions provided and carry out the necessary interviews.

Sending across your nominations and being interviewed by ALB does not guarantee a ranking. This is only part of the research process. We also consider feedback of clients and other sources as part of the ranking process.

1. Online Research

- a. Verify the candidate's profile via firm's website
- b. Investigate and assess the significant litigation cases submitted by the candidate
- c. Review and analyze the cases which lawyers participated in and for which judgements were pronounced in the last 12 months which are available on public channels

2. Interview

Interview with clients and peers listed in the submission. This is usually done to assess client satisfaction and reputation in the industry

Details in 1 and 2 will be compiled and moved to the evaluation process.
